Against Nietzsche's claim that Christianity poisoned eros, God and Eros rereads the mystery of human love as an ecstatic sharing in the mystery of the triune God who is Love. Body, sex, and affectivity, far from being locked in a lower order called nature, instead belong to a sacramental order that is permeated by the call to love. In presentations designed to appeal to a general audience, the faculty of the John Paul II Institute for Marriage and Family, Melbourne, approach this mystery through the lens of St. John Paul II's theology of the body, with the goal to both introduce and more clearly illumine its major features. In particular, emphasis is placed on how a theology of the body is not just about sex. Rather, it is above all about how each and every person--no matter what her state of life--is stamped by the watermark of being-from and being-for. Working within this broader perspective, God and Eros offers the reader a lively, engaging, and at times challenging tour of the full ethos of the nuptial mystery. Did Nietzsche have it right? Has Christianity poisoned eros? Melbourne's JP II Institute demonstrates the opposite: the Christian faith treats eros as the great wing-giver, motivating every human project, and it honors the body as the sacramental marker of this restlessness for the mystery of Love. In a world preoccupied with sex, this book takes us to the true profundity of the human person. --Hans Boersma, J. I. Packer Professor of Theology, Regent College, Vancouver, BC This comprehensive, profound, and stimulating account of the relationship between...
