Not illustrated. 1911 Excerpt: .such people we can obtain the greater our chances will be of surpassing all rivals and the better it will be for all who engage in the apple industry in this State. Horticulture has always had a fascination for the best types of people. Communities made up of men and women who have the mental and moral qualities essential to success in the apple industry will raise the standard of agriculture, and bring about a much-needed increase of respect for those engaged in this occupation. The good effects of their coming will not die with them but will endure. Questions and Answers. Q. Did Mr. Miller mention the difference in the price of Australian and Hood River apples? A. I do not think he referred to Australian apples. They come into the market at a different time. Q. How about the Japanese apples? A. They do not produce any. He simply said that they can do it. The great bulk of all the apples offered for the markets in Europe are the veriest trash. All that is to keep us in mind what our competitors can do. Of course France produces some very fine fruit with very inadequate methods. When the Panama Canal is finished it will open up one of the greatest markets for our American apples. It will enable us to lay them down there at reduced freight rates through the opening of the canal. Q. I noticed that Mr. Miller spoke very highly...
